Based on extensive research and first-hand experience, Dr. Elias breaks the mold of traditional parenting advice by taking into account the strong role of emotions – those of parents and children – in psychological development and future success in the education, careers, family, and citizenship. Dr. Elias will offer suggestions on how parents can best use their emotions in the most constructive ways, focusing on how to handle everyday issues, as sibling rivalry, conflicts with friends, school situations, homework and peer pressure, to build for a life of pride and accomplishment.
